Y Offers Classes To Men And Women in Service

One hundred eighty service men and women from the Army, Navy, Marines, WAC and WAVES are obtaining instruction by correspondence from Brigham Young University, according to Miss Anton Hawker, clerk of the Extension Division.

Using books or army cots for desks, and battleships or tents for classrooms, service men and women who take advantage of this opportunity to obtain relief credit for work done while in the services are largely interested in adding to their military education, continuing their college training, or simply following pre-war interests and hobbies.

Many Overseas
Of the 180 enrolled in the courses 87 are stationed overseas, and the rest in training camps scattered through 31 states, and in Canada.

The course most often registered for is Elementary Botany. This class is taught by Dr. T. L. Martin who comments that "I have never had a finer group of students." Other courses with large enrollments are Commercial Art and Water Color Painting taught by Prof. Edgar M. Jensen; Radio Journalism, taught by Dr. T. Earl Pardee; and Plane Trigonometry,

Elsie C. Carroll Story Contest Is Announced

Announcement is made of the annual Elsie C. Carroll short story contest, sponsored yearly by Mrs. Carroll of the English department, to help develop the talents of college students in literature.

An award is made to the winner of this contest at the Girls' Day assembly which will be held May 4. The pre-selection will be made by Mrs. Carroll.

Associated Women Student officers are supervising the contest and according to Emma Hayes, AWS president, any girl registered at Brigham Young University is eligible to submit an entry.

The story must be original, the theme should pertain to some phase of western life, and the manuscript should be from one to three thousand words in length.

A copy of the story, typewritten and with the name of the author separate from the manuscript, should be submitted to any of the AWS officers by April 21. AWS officers include Emma Hayes, John Moulton, Elsie Nichols and Velma Bates.

Taught by Dr. Milton Marshall With very little time available for study, it has been accomplished by students who take advantage of every opportunity. Due to frequent changes in address, courses are sent complete whenever possible in order to assure students that they will have enough material on hand for uninterrupted study.

Service men registrations may be made on a space basis, as provided by BYU through the U. S. Armed Forces Institute. Through pay half of the cost of tuition and textbooks, stating that the long term effect of the new program will be for the benefit of the student in keeping in contact with his profession, learning or perfecting a trade, or remodeling his high school or college education; that the immediate effect will be his development of a greater asset to the war effort.

Over seven hundred courses are offered in service men and women through the set up, and are taken from any one of 76 college and universities.

The opposing candidates in the forthcoming AWS officer election pose together. Marjorie Lindstrom was not present when the picture was taken.

Prof. Poulsen Presents Plan To Faculty

A forward-looking plan of higher education was reviewed by Professor Wilford Poulsen at the faculty meeting on March 6. The report was taken from the annual publication of the Carnegie Foundation for Advancement in Teaching.

The topic covered twenty years of investigation by that agency and other research agencies on how to change college arrangement in order to improve learning facilities of students in the light of individual differences.

An almost axiomatic confidence in our present system exists, it was stated, and this was questioned. The method of taking courses, one upon another, and the doing out of credit at the end of a specified period may not provide proper experiences for living, according to the report.

Advance theories of education would place emphasis upon courses in which students would solve problems vital to themselves. The student would enter a given course for a short time to help in the solution of these vital individual problems.

The courses would be on a differential basis, with the student given responsibility of solving actual problems, and help coming from the group more in a form comparable to seminars. There would be, of course, close cooperation between student and instructor.

Some elements of this plan can be seen in the method adopted by the University of Chicago and ad-

Swalberg, Bates Run for Top AWS Position

Final voting on candidates for next year's Associated Women Student officers will be conducted Friday. In the primary elections held Monday, the finalists chosen were Velma Bates and Joy Swalberg, president; Elmore Boyack and Afton Bryson, vice-president; Anna Jean Bullock and Valena Jones, secretary; Miriam Young and Marjorie Lindstrom, recreational leader.

Voting
Voting will be conducted Friday on both the lower and upper campus, according to Emma Hayes, AWS president. Students must present their spring quarter activity cards to receive a ballot.

Candidates
All of the candidates have been active in student affairs and organizations on the campus. Both candidates for president are juniors. Velma is from Mesa, Arizona and is a Costa Tiki, and has served as AWS recreational leader this year. Joy is from Spanish Fork, Utah, and has been active in dramatic activities.

Vice-presidential nominees are sophomores, Elmore Boyack, looking for a transfer from the University of Wyoming. She is a Costa Tiki, and lives in Cheyenne, Wyoming. Afton Bryson comes from Bonanza, Utah, and is affiliated with the O. S. Trovata social unit.

Valena Jones comes from Springville, Utah, and is a Costa Tiki, while the other secretarial aspirant is Val Norn, Anna Jean Bullock of Montrose, Colorado. Valena is a junior and Anna Jean a sophomore.

Sophomores Miriam Young and Marjorie Lindstrom are matched as the recreational leaders. Miriam is a Val Norn and comes from American Fork, while Marjorie is a Fidelity and comes from Roberts, Idaho.

Medical Office | Gives Health Hints

Students:
Due to the overcrowded living conditions and the uncertainty of the times, we are anxious that each school child be brought up to date on his immunization for typhoid fever, small pox, and diphtheria. Many of our students were immunized for these diseases last year, but we feel even though they had the series of three inoculations for typhoid fever, they should have a "Booster Dose" (which is now available) this year. This will help them by their typhoid fever immunization up to date and save them repeating the three doses.

Small pox should be rechecked every five years.

We urge you to give this due consideration and report to the medical office, lower campus, for the treatment.

Yours truly,
B.Y.U. Medical Dept.
Typhoid fever: regular three doses, 25c, or "Booster dose" 10c.
Small pox vaccination, 25c.
Diphtheria inoculation, 25c.

Advocated by the president of that university.

Under the new system little emphasis would be given to credit, grades and degrees as such. While they would be awarded it would be on the basis of individual accomplishment in solving problems. Professor Poulsen presented the report in an effort to stimulate faculty members in the direction of study and evaluation of such plans in higher education, and to investigate possibilities of applying some theories to Brigham Young University.

New Faculty Members Are Announced

The addition of two new members to the BYU faculty for next year was revealed by Registrar John E. Hayes. Dr. H. Wayne Driggs who is now professor of English at the State Teacher's college in Oneonta, New York, will fill the position of associate professor of English here at BYU. He received his B. A. and M. A. degrees from University of Utah and his Ph.D. from New York University.

Assisting Nettie Neff Smaat as assistant dean of women will be Elizabeth Hill who is a 1940 graduate of BYU. Miss Hill received her master's degree from Columbia University and is now working on her studying personnel and guidance work.

New Faces . . .

We want to welcome, unofficially all the new students who registered at BYU this quarter for the first time and also the students who registered this quarter after an absence of many years.

It is perhaps superfluous to note that school is vastly different now than it used to be, and that many of you will not find the things that you expected to find in college. Just how much you will miss this year depends upon exactly what you expect to find in college.

If you came to find college life, you face a rude awakening. If you came to kill time, you will find that college is no place to simply "sit out" a war.

But if you came as we believe you came, to seek out the best of thought and practice in all civilization, to live and to learn in the academic environment, and to STUDY the courses offered at BYU, you have become a part of the spirit that exists at BYU; you will find what you want.

The Clean Slate . . .

There is no point in kidding ourselves about Spring Quarter any longer. Spring Quarter is a challenge, one of the biggest ever to face the students of BYU.

Not that we believe that the whole fabric of university life is about to collapse and that we who are here this year must try frantically to sustain a semblance of what has existed in former years. But there is an unmistakable air of uncertainty hanging like the breath of doom over student activities.

Perhaps we are wrong, but we do not feel that the challenge this quarter concerns whether or not we students of BYU in 1944 can cling tenaciously to a few hopes and manage to pull through the remaining months. We are sure that we can do that. We believe that a general spirit of hopeless lethargy exists in virtually all of the campus organizations and that if someone does not wake up and stop crying "quid" just because there is a war on, the spirit of BYU is going to die an untimely and absolutely unnecessary death.

There is talent on this campus. There are leaders on this campus. There is still at least a faint desire on the part of some individuals to see student activities continue as much as possible in spite of the war, so long as they do not actually hinder the war effort. But the irony of the whole situation is that there seems to be an utterly complete and contemptible lack of energy on the part of most students and organizations.

This is not an indictment of student leaders. They are doing their best to continue student activities. But it seems to us that most student organizations have done very little toward promoting activities that include large groups. Spring Quarter is the time to act; the time for students and organizations to support every worthwhile activity that includes more than a few clanish students.

We know that many activities pursued in former years are both impractical and impossible to continue under existing conditions. But many times we feel that projects are cancelled simply because it is easy to hide under the cloak of patriotism and too much

Students, haven't you ever been amazed at what went on in the name of social custom? If not, you were never a girl. Several thousand times to every girl that night when she must stay home and study. And all because nice girls just aren't forward. Of course, every girl finally finds ways and means before she gets an education and marks several sordid ways to approach the celebrated scion of the human race. Yes, the nature of the social system has made women a master strategist. Do you think we should have women generals?

Again in the realm of social custom comes the sacred practice of tolerance. It generally boils down to this: whenever you see or hear something you don't like, you, with the air of one who has just smelled rotten cabbage, turn your head away and ignore it.

Now there is an art in the way you turn your head that may give to anyone looking on an index to your character. For instance, if you can do it and look aloof, it may give the observer the impression that you have the inside track on sacred decorum. Or if you can turn your head and really give the impression that you have noticed nothing, the observer may think, what a character—or what an idiotic stup—depending on the observer.

Then there are those who cannot turn their heads, but stay and try to do something about what they think is wrong. These, my friends, are the people who are bound to get in trouble. If they can finally succeed in convincing anyone, they are prophets. If not, they are heretics. Best not to try this last one. We have lots of heretics and few prophets. Best we all be observers. The best subjects for observation are, of course, the faculty. The best place for observation is, again of course, in demonstrations on Tuesdays.

Some girls go to college to pursue learning; others to learn pursuing.

This 'n That

By Mave 'n Pat

Well, here we are back again, fresh as daisies after our long between-quarter vacation. Well, anyway we're still fresh.

We're kinda late with our tribute to the departed, but we mean it:

Pome of the Week:

Ode to ASTP. No. 3959

To all our friends in olive drab,
With whom we used to laugh and gab,
We want to bid our last good-byes,
And wish you luck amid our sighs.
We thought you all were pretty swell,
Even the ones we knew quite well,
With your vitality, vigor, and vim,
You added a much-needed touch of 'him'.
So don't change a bit, and wherever you go,

Your dashing personality will always glow.

So remember, fellows, the Y was mad about you.

Besides, Provo kinda liked you too;
So don't forget us, have fun, and behave—
These are your wishes from Pat 'n Mave.

It's really too bad the cadets got drafted; but that's enough about the army, now let's talk about men.

The Provo high school basketball squad lived up to our expectations and walked away with the state championship. (Maybe they're warped; most normal boys walz with girls!) The games looked pretty good from where we were sitting, two blocks away on telephone poles. We only saw 18 of the games up there; we don't believe in overdoing anything. Although we hate to admit it, we had a pretty wild time up there. Why, Saturday night we even went so far as to have TWO oranges!

You know, we certainly were excited last week. One of our girl friends had a date! Carol Collard always did have the most exciting dates of any girl in the crowd. In fact, she's the only one who ever did have a date. When we asked her for a play-by-play account of the evening, she thoughtfully and nonchalantly said: "Oh, we just ate a lovely dinner, then we went to the show, then we just sat and watched people go by." We asked "Where?" She answered, "Oh, down to the lake."

Miss Holbrook was telling us a few minutes ago that the two best sports for building coordination and strength were swimming and tumbling. We sure are enjoying our tumbling class, but it's sure hard swimming in that gym with no water.

We didn't enjoy our finals very much for the winter quarter. Every room we'd go into, the teacher would tell us to sit apart. Elaine Gwynn said she had been set apart so much she felt just like a bishop.

Friday night we went to see "Jane Eyre." When Orson Wells kissed Jean Fontaine we really liked it. We didn't think we were drooling, but we sure were mad when he had to work late mopping up the whole front of the theatre.

Thought for today: Now that all you cadets are gone, why don't you drop us a line? You never did when you were here.

bother to continue an activity because of lack of energy and ambition. To cite an example, we note that rehearsals for the annual Varsity Show are getting underway. It would have been extremely easy to give that up, and perhaps it was necessary to do so. But at least the students who are trying to make the Varsity Show a success can know that they did not give up without a struggle.

In spite of the somewhat half-hearted enthusiasm shown by some organizations that should have helped to support it, the women's intra-mural tournament was conducted successfully. If social units and independent organizations, including Lambda Delta Sigma, would cooperate, a softball tournament or at least intra-mural tennis matches between units and independent teams could be arranged.

Somewhere along the line, someone is going to have to wake up and live or else school spirit is going to die of academic gangrene.

Bride-To-Be Feted By Fideles Unit

Fideles girls met at the home of Lorraine Drissel last Thursday evening. The party which was in the nature of a surprise, honored Miss Marjorie Korte, a bride of next week.

As the honoree arrived, Wagner's bride song was sung by the group. During the evening an attractive bride's book was made and presented to Miss Korte. The tasty refreshments were served buffet style from one long table, and a lovely bride's cake was employed as a centerpiece. From a white bell suspended over the table, green streamers were extended to ten towels about the table, each having the name of a Fideles member embroidered in gay colors.

Lorraine Drissel and Marjorie Korte were co-chairmen in charge of the party.

On next Monday Miss Korte will become the bride of Second class Petty Officer Rex H. O'Connor of the Medical Corps, U.S. Navy. The young couple, are from Richfield, Utah. Following the wedding the "newly-weds" will leave for Oakland, California where they will make their home.

Those cooperating and participating in the dancing were Ida Allen Smithson, Roma Jean Turner, Barbara Lusty, Betty Nielsen, Phil Robinson, Harden Brendon, Cud Reddie, and Clarence Clark.

Dinner Honors White Key Girls

White Key members were guests of the Y. C. service society on Friday evening for their reward for winning the campus bond selling contest.

A Saint Patrick's day theme was carried out in the decorations, and a huge cake decorated in green and white bearing the inscription: "Congratulations, White Keys," was the centerpiece. White and green candy favors were presented to the White Keys.

Cadet James Burson and Tom Maloney were also guests, and they were each presented with an address book. White Key members sang their sweet-heart song to Burson and thanked him on the eve of his departure for the help he had given them in their marching and drilling. Y. C. members then asked Maloney to be their sweet-heart, and he accepted as the girls surrounded him and sang their song.

Table games were played, and community singing was under direction of Jane Thompson and Barbara Rasmussen.

Saturday is the late afternoon White Keys were on hand to bid the cadets farewell as they boarded their train. The girls passed oranges and magazines to the boys for their trip.

White Key pledges will honor the actives at a dinner Saturday evening after which final pledging will take place.

At the conclusion of the business meeting, hostess Rae Madden served spring salad and hot rolls to the members.

This evening Val Norns will gather at the home of Elaine Taylor to hear Doreesa Paxman read the play, "Bachelor Mother."

Dinner Party Honors Persian Students

Celebrating Persia's New Year's Day, which is March 21, and is known as "No Ruz," the Persian students attending the Y were guests at dinner at the home of President and Mrs. F. S. Harris on University hill.

This event is the biggest in the year for Persians, being a combination of Christmas and New Years.

The guest list included: Fred Seib, Ahmad Schayesteh, and Fatolah Sami, and the Don. B. Gibson, guest speaker at the devotional service, and Nancy Beersall.

Cupid's Couples Are United With Marriage Vows

The Salt Lake Temple was the scene of a lovely wedding last Wednesday, March 22, when Ruby Stratton became the bride of Clive F. Pullman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mont A. Pullman of McKinnon, Wyoming.

Saturday evening, the young couple were honored at a wedding reception at the Lincoln high school gymnasium.

The bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stratton, is now attending the Y as a junior, and is a member of the Fideles social unit. Mr. Pullman is also a former student of the Y.

In the presence of family members and a few close friends, Miss Betty Steedman and Lloyd C. Higgin were united in marriage at a lovely ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Steedman, last Saturday evening.

The bride wore a gown of white satin modeled with train and a fingertip veil of lace edged net which fell from a lace tiara. She carried a bouquet of gardenias and orchids.

The newlyweds were honored at a reception at the home from eight to eleven o'clock, and about seventy-five guests were in attendance.

The bride is a former Y student, and was a member of the Val Norn social unit. The younger couple left Provo Sunday night for Buffalo, New York where they will make their home.

T/S Robert MacDougall, who is registered for an art course, attached the following note to his first lesson: "Enclosed is my first unit, completed while on maneuvers. In the future the sheets will be in better condition. It was a job-keeping thing clean during the process."

Contesting for the coveted crown are five attractive Y girls, Jeanne Pilling, freshman from Santa Barbara, California; Karma Jean Cullimore, sophomore from Provo; Bonnie Lyman of Westport, Conn., a sophomore; Barbara Taylor, American Fork, a junior this year; and Mary Ellen Dauwalder, a junior and also from Provo.

A gay carnival spirit will reign supreme with various entertaining games, dancing for those so inclined, and just plenty of refreshments for everyone attending the affair. Every year the Banyan sponsors a frolic for the members of the student body, and this year's party promises to top all expectations in entertainment, gaiety and fun.

It's a no-date affair and every student body member is welcome. The program begins at 8:30 sharp.

Mavis Hafes is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements and assisting her are Miriam Young and Margaret Halea, publicity managers of the Banyan.

Club President To Read 3-Act Play Monday

Mary Whiteley, junior from Oakley, Idaho, will read the three-act play, "Accent on Youth" by Samson Raphaelson, in Mask Club Monday evening.

With speech as a major and business as a minor, Mary will either teach or go into stenographic work after her graduation. She is also a student of creative dance and has performed in several programs given by the school.

At the present time, Mary is president of the Mask Club, vice-president of Centa Theta, and a member of Centa Alpha Phi. In her freshman year she served as a cheerleader, and last quarter she was a member of the Junior Prom committee.

Both her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Earl Whiteley, and three sisters have attended the Y, but none of them were speech majors.

About the WAVES

What is the term of enlistment in the WAVES?

For the duration of the war and up to six months thereafter.

How many women are there in the WAVES?

About 47,000 at the end of 1943. The Navy needs 92,000 girls in WAVES uniforms by the end of 1944.

Am I finishing third year in college. May I enlist?

Sorry, not until you're 20. Then, up to 32, consent of parents or guardian is necessary. Women up to 26 years of age are eligible.

May a girl who was born in Germany enlist?

Yes, provided she has naturalization papers.

When does a WAVE's pay begin?

The day she arrives at the training station. Like Navy men, WAVES are paid twice a month.

Full information about the WAVES is contained in a new booklet, "The Story of the Navy's greatest fighting organization as told by Navy Reserve Station or Office of Naval Officer Personnel."

Prisoner of War Leo Frazier, in Germany, has written for an extension course from the Y.

A new promotion has been received by Samuel P. Smoot. He is now a first lieutenant in the Fifth Air Corps, Southwest Pacific.

Sgt. Harold W. Brereton is now a paratrooper in the Army and thinks it just about tops every other branch of the service. He has been taking his training in Tennessee.

Former Frosh president Richard Hales is now knee deep in his Y-12 training at the University of Iowa, at Ames. He is the third son of the Hales family to don a uniform.
